

Embracing the Challenge

"The Fathers of Morden could not possibly have foreseen what the fruits of their labours would be...The world as we know it evolved in a series of changes growing ever more rapid as the twentieth century brought more scientific knowledge...Just as the early pioneers could not foresee the fruits of their labours, neither can the citizens of 1982 know what kind of legacy their efforts are creating for the generations to come..."

A new century is dawning for the Town of Morden, and a new challenge is being handed to the residents of tomorrow..."

Morden Centennial Book Committee, 1981

The citizens of today can no better predict the future of this town than could the Fathers of Morden's early days. Yet they continue to work together to enhance life for all who live here. This Guiding Spirits Exhibit has been designed to celebrate individuals, past and present, who have participated in this community's growth and well-being. These photos and stories are a small representation of those who have made Morden a unique and inviting prairie town – countless more could be included.

The new century has dawned, the new challenge embraced and the residents of Morden continue to build their legacy.

Morden Chautauqua Spirit Committee, 2008
