MORENET UPDATE

The City of Morden is preparing to make a significant announcement regarding Morenet and what our citizens can expect going forward. Since learning about the costs related to the project and what it would take to deliver comprehensive Morenet coverage, city staff and Council have been working diligently to try to find solutions and determine the best way forward.

While an announcement is still a few weeks away from being ready to be made public, city staff and Council have seen a sharp uptick in concerns from citizens regarding the lack of news being shared officially regarding the Morenet project. With that in mind, we would like to assure our citizens that a project the size and scale of Morenet with complex multi-faceted components, as with any of the other large-scale projects that the city is currently involved with, is done with significant work behind the scenes before an announcement can be made. We thank the citizens of Morden for their patience in this regard and want everyone to know that we have been listening to your concerns and suggestions.

We as a city are actively working on improving our communication channels between city staff and the citizens of Morden and will share any updates regarding Morenet through our city-owned communication channels like our website and social media, as well as through our local media partners who we are in close communication with. As soon as we are able, we will use all the communication tools available to us to share this news with our community.

Thank you to the citizens of Morden for making your voice heard and for your patience during this process.
